State Awards “Strong Families, Safe Communities” Grants
Communities Collaborate to Create Coordinated Care Plans to Help At-Risk Youth

COLUMBUS -- The Ohio Departments of Developmental Disabilities (DODD) and Mental Health & Addiction Services (OhioMHAS) today announced awards of nearly $3 million out of a $5 million grant to seven community partnerships to implement the Strong Families, Safe Communities project and to provide care coordination and crisis intervention services for youth at risk of harming themselves or others due to a mental illness or developmental disability. In addition to the grant awards, the project will also provide statewide training on crisis intervention for mental health and developmental disabilities services professionals. Strong Families Safe Communities is funded by Governor Kasich’s initiative to commit money from Ohio’s Children’s Health Insurance Program Reauthorization Act (CHIPRA) awards to develop targeted strategies to stabilize youth in crisis, ages 8-24, and develop long-term treatment plans that help children and their families live happy and healthy lives.

“Children at risk—those struggling and teetering on the edge of self-harm or aggression and violence—often aren’t yet in treatment programs and therefore not yet known to us as someone in need of care and support,” said Tracy Plouck, director of OhioMHAS. “Our focus was to engage our local systems and encourage community-driven solutions that combine knowledge and leadership across agencies. We’re very pleased with the comprehensive treatment models in these counties’ plans.”

DODD and OhioMHAS recruited 38 proposals from Ohio’s communities, all representing collaboration among mental health and developmental services providers, and many involving multi-county partnerships. The seven partnerships selected (*see attached fact sheet) together service families in twenty counties and represent collaboration among public and private providers in both the mental health and developmental disabilities service systems. The selected projects include intensive care coordination, rapid response team efforts, family mentoring and support, screening for high-risk children, and therapeutic services.

“We’re very pleased that so many Ohio communities were ready and able to submit viable projects and coordinated care models for this project,” said John Martin, director of Ohio Department of Developmental Disabilities. “From the submissions we have received we have learned what types of service supports and training are most widely needed. We anticipate the selected projects will also identify best practices and models of care than can be duplicated to benefit all counties and all Ohioans.”

Directors Plouck and Martin plan to visit each of the community partnerships in July to officially award the grants and share more details about each project with local communities. Dates and locations of these announcement events will be released soon. More details about statewide training will also be released when schedules are developed.

OhioMHAS, formed by the consolidation of the Ohio Departments of Alcohol and Drug Addiction Services and Mental Health, oversees six regional psychiatric hospitals and a statewide network of more than 400 community-based mental health service providers and 460 alcohol, drug and problem gambling addiction prevention, treatment and recovery service providers.

DODD is responsible for overseeing a statewide system of supports and services for people with developmental disabilities. The department’s mission is continuous improvement of the quality of life for Ohio’s citizens with developmental disabilities and their families.

Helping Ohio's Children and Youth in Crisis

Overview of Recommended Proposals

June 4, 2013

The RFA generated 38 proposals. The proposals were scored by a committee of staff members from DODD and ODMH, as well as a family advocate. The recommendation is to fund the seven proposals summarized, in addition to providing statewide training. This utilizes the first-year funds, with an anticipated $1 million for further distribution in the second year. In addition, there will be an evaluation process to analyze data and results as they occur, to determine which of the proposals have potential for statewide implementation.
