

Is online Peer Recovery Supporter (PRS) Training right for me?

Online PRS training may not be the best option for everyone. If you are not able to meet the below requirements, please wait for an available in-person PRS training.

I can attend all 40 hours of the training (I understand that I cannot make-up online training time for any reason).

I have no outside obligations, personal or professional, during training hours (this includes medical appointments). I can devote my time exclusively to training.

I have a quiet, private, indoor space to complete the training. If others are in my home, I have a private room with a door that can be closed. I understand that the training space is confidential, and no one else may be in the same room during training (including children & family members).

If applicable, I have appropriate childcare arrangements during training hours (I understand children cannot be present during training).

I have a strong, reliable internet connection (my internet does not frequently go down or buffer when I play videos). I understand that I cannot miss training time for technical issues.

I have a laptop or desktop computer, and I have checked that my microphone and web camera are working (I understand that I cannot complete training on a phone or tablet). NOTE: Google Chromebooks are not permitted.

I am comfortable using Zoom without assistance. (I understand that there is not technical assistance available during training).
